Spotlight on Community: Old Towne Night Brings Neighbors Together

Friday March 27 6:30PM
Trinity Lutheran Church

Old Towne Night has long been a beloved tradition in Historic Wrightsville, and this year promises to be no different. We invite you to join us in welcoming Mr. Jeri Jones, a native Yorker and owner of Jones Geological Services, where he specializes in the geology of southeastern Pennsylvania.

Mr. Jones has taught at several local colleges, and his expertise includes mining and geologic history, groundwater resources, and southeastern PA Earthquakes. Most recently, he completed a study on the building stone used in the AME Zion Church and the Mifflin House. We are excited to host his presentation, “Your Backyard Geology,” which will offer fascinating insights into the geologic stories beneath our feet. Community traditions matter – they connect us, strengthen our local pride, and remind us of the richness of our shared history.

Grandchildren

I have two grandchildren, a girl and a boy, ages 8 and 11. While I don't get to spend much time with them since they live in South Carolina, I have learned a thing or two about the joys and sorrows of being a grandparent. Perhaps some of the grandparents will know what I'm talking about.

When in deep, serious, thought-provoking conversation with a group of grandparents, you can clearly hear that each grandparent sincerely believes their child's offspring is uniquely smart and talented, even more so than other children their age. Each grandchild adores their grandparents and loves to be with them. There is something special about being able to spoil your grandchildren, making sure they feel special, and being the fun grandparent that all the kids want to share. Grandparents listen intently to their grandchildren and their parents so they can learn what would be a surprise gift to give them. In turn the grandchildren are delighted with the surprises and will always remember them.

Trying to keep up with the grandchildren can keep you in better physical and mental condition. But I will tell you, it is not a good idea to try doing cartwheels with your gymnast granddaughter. It is a good idea to make 50 pieces of jewelry with her, to support her artistic tendencies with fancy art supplies, and encourage her to pursue scientific courses in school. And for heaven's sake try hard to understand her fashion sense.

Since it is less dangerous than cartwheels, I decided to build a fort with my grandson. I helped him design the fort, understand the constraints on the fort (e.g. it can't be bigger than the open space in his room), and estimate the materials needed. We cut cardboard panels with electric scissors. We used a Ryobi driver to hold the panels together with wingnuts, bolts and washers. The result was a huge fort with three rooms (one for his sister), and windows and doors complete with safety latches. His mom was upset because she would not be able to vacuum the room, so I knew it was a good fort.

Which brings me to some not so joyful things about being a grandparent especially if you're the paternal grandparent. Your daughter-in-law is likely to prefer her own parents be with the children. While the parents seem to cultivate a relationship between the grandchildren and the maternal grandparents, you seem to be unappreciated and frequently left out. I learned one important thing about this parenting style: the children will become wise to the situation and will begin to demand to spend more time with you.

But there comes a time when your grandchildren are more interested in their friends, video games, skateboards, 4-wheelers, and anything that is fun but dangerous. At some point you'll find their hopes and dreams, their beliefs and plans for the future, their thoughts on having children themselves - everything about them seems to oppose what you expected for them. No, they have not been taken over by aliens. It's just their generation. Look back to the time when you were growing up, when you were venturing out on your own, and how you were an alien to your parents and grandparents. Don't take this personally. They will always remember their time with you. If you look closely, you will see a bit of yourself in that alien. They will tell their children about the wonderful times they had with you, and how wise you were, how all their friends loved you too, and that you were the best grandparent ever.

Trash and Recycling Bins Available For Your Next Event from YCSWA!

Whether you are hosting a backyard barbeque or coordinating the largest event in York County, you can borrow easy to use trash and recycling receptacles from YCSWA at no cost.

Curbside Recycling

Knowing what to put in your recycling bin is very important. If you put items into your recycling bin that do not belong there, the entire bin might be considered "contaminated." The contents of contaminated bins are collected and taken to our waste-to-energy facility instead of being recycled into a new product. Most municipalities offer curbside or drop-off recycling service. If you are confused about what should be deposited in the recycling bin, your first step is to contact your municipality for those details. Items accepted for recycling may vary depending on the type of recycling program and/or where you live. For additional information about curbside recycling in York County, visit:

www.ycswa.com/services/recycling/household-times/

PROOF OF INSURANCE

Proof of Insurance is required on all projects in the form of a Certificate of Liability listing Wrightsville Borough as the certificate holder. If a contractor is doing the work, their liability insurance information is required. If a contractor is not employed, the homeowner must provide a copy of their homeowners insurance in the form of a certificate of liability. This is typically called an ACORD file.

Permit application and other useful forms are located in the Borough lobby and also on the Borough website; www.wrightsvilleborough.com

Effective Stormwater Management

Adopt-A-Storm Drain

It is very important that we work together to keep our storm drains always working at 100% capacity. Leaves, grass clippings, trash, branches, etc. can cause blockage which may result in dangerous street flooding if a storm hits. Please report any damaged, or blocked, storm drain inlets right away by calling the Water Department at 717-252-3276

The Effects of Pollution

Polluted stormwater runoff can have many adverse effects on plants, fish, animals, and people.

- Sediment can cloud the water and make it difficult or impossible for aquatic plants to grow. Sediment also can destroy aquatic habitats.
- Excess nutrients can cause algae blooms when algae die, they sink to the bottom and decompose in a process that removes oxygen from the water. Fish and other aquatic organisms can't exist in water with low dissolved oxygen levels.
- Bacteria and other pathogens can wash into swimming areas and create health hazards, often making beach closures necessary.
- Debris- plastic bags, six-pack rings, bottles, and cigarette butts that are washed into water bodies can choke, suffocate, or disable aquatic life like ducks, fish, turtles and bird.
- Household hazardous wastes like insecticides, pesticides, paint solvents, used motor oil, and other auto fluids can poison aquatic life.
